The course is taught each fall. His decades of experience in the maritime industry is beneficial in the classroom. It serves as a means of providing students with explicit examples of the real-world material taught in the course. This is especially true of his experience as a Ship Captain, instructor in the private sector, advisor to the United States Coast Guard, Safety Manager, and a Vessel Auditor/Inspector. Mr. Verdin also holds extensive certifications that prepare him to expose our students to valuable knowledge. Certifications include: TVIB Certified lead Auditor, Master of Towing Vessels upon Oceans, USCG Licensed Master of Stream and Motor Vessels, ISO Lead Auditor Course (QMII), USCG Marine Inspection Courses, OCIMF Offshore Vessel Inspection Database Training, and GMDSS Instructor Training.

Her M.A. from Bowling Green is not specifically in the field of English but in a tangentially related discipline: Popular Cultural Studies. For Example, we encourage our first-year writing instructors to include at least one multi-modal text as an assignment, which underscores the changing nature of composition studies and the ways that developments in technology and changes in culture are transforming the ways we read and produce texts. Ms. King's work with the Center for Teaching Innovation at the University of New Orleans and her teaching of seminars in online course design and teaching and learning pedagogy contribute to her qualifications Her teaching experience, professional presentations, research interests, and related work experiences are excellent preparation for the teaching of first-year writing.

In particular, she has experience teaching topics similar to what she is expected to teach in BIOL 114 and BIOL 115 at Nicholls, including (1) the hierarchical organization of interacting systems that provide specific functions within multicellular organisms, (2) evidence that feedback mechanisms maintain homeostasis in living organisms, (3) the role of the cell cycle and differentiation in producing and maintaining complex organisms, (4) how carbon, hydrogen and oxygen form sugar molecules and may combine with other elements to form amino acids and/or other large carbon-based molecules, (5) cellular respiration as a chemical process whereby the bonds of food molecules and oxygen molecules are broken and the bonds in new compounds are formed, resulting in a net transfer of energy, and (6) the role of DNA and chromosomes in coding the instructions for characteristic traits passed from parents to offspring. She has participated in the Biology Data Review team for the LA Department of Education in July 2018. BIOL114 and BIOL 115 are typically taken by first time freshmen and Lilah's experience with upper level high school biology students will benefit her students here at Nicholls. She has had high student ratings and her students perform well on exams. She has earned credit in 13 hours of graduate level courses related to Anatomy and Physiology and currently enrolled in 6 hours of graduate level coursework. She matches our program needs and has performed well.
